VOTE ON THE WATER AND SEWER PROJECT WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12th, 1947

By Mayor W. D. Allan

Fellow citizens of the Town of Vulcan, Wednesday, March 12th, you are being asked to vote on a Town bylaw for a debenture issue of $175,000.00. This bylaw will allow the Town of Vulcan to go ahead with the new project of supplying our town with a water and sewer system, which to my mind, is one of the most, if not the most important improvement that our town could ever undertake and without a doubt will be the deciding factor in Vulcan's history. With the water and sewerage system installed, your town can grow year by year and maintain its present position of the largest town between Calgary and Lethbridge on the Aldersyde line. Without water and sewerage no town can amount to any size. I therefore take this opportunity offered by the Vulcan Advocate to use its space on behalf of the Town Council to bring this matter before you.

Your council would most certainly like nothing better than to see the system in operation. We are at your command, and should you give us the go ahead sign, we will travel step by step, carefully considering every angle. The very fact that water and sewer will be available will increase the value of all town property and will be a direct benefit to the whole town in added fire protection and reduced fire insurance rates. Let me sum up in the following manner:

1. The Town at present is without sewer and water.
2. Without water and sewerage the growth of your town must be held back.
3. The proposed plan is well considered and approved by the Provincial Government.
4. It is the only satisfactory plan within the financial limits of the town.
5. The new system is definitely ample for future expansion and increase in population.
6. Ample water and sewerage system will make a healthier and cleaner town.
7. The water and sewerage system costs spread over thirty years will pay for itself without increasing taxes as soon as all connections can be made.

Therefore, let me urge every citizen to get out and vote for the bylaw. Without sufficient water, human, animal and plant life will die, and without a water and sewerage system your town will die.

Yours for a BETTER, BIGGER and CLEANER TOWN.

Community Health And Water Supply

ENVIRONMENTAL sanitation is oldest form of public health endeavor. To it can be attributed much of the reduction in typhoid fever, and summer diarrhoeas, and control of many of the milk, food and water-borne infections.

That sanitation should be the foundation upon which the modern superstructure of public health has been erected was the inevitable result of the evolution of concepts of infectious disease. As our predecessors conceived these to be due to inhalation of toxic emanations of decaying filth early public health attention was logically directed to cleanliness of the environment. The advent of the era of bacteriology made possible the separation of the programme into two components; the one with a specific disease prevention value, the other with mere aesthetic value. This had an unfortunate consequence, for it led to a tendency to reject all measures that could not be shown to have specific value in disease prevention. "Clean dirt" was distinguished from "dirty dirt" and municipal sanitation was divorced from public health engineering. The complete disregard of these aesthetic components is illogical and even detrimental to public health progress. Many of these aesthetic aspects have added immeasurably to our standard of living. The cleanliness of a community's streets food handling establishments, and public buildings, including public toilets, is a true measure of its standard of living. To ensure such a high standard, the provision of a pure, adequate, and constant water supply is a prime necessity. In civilized countries, the world over, where satisfactory water supplies are in use, the daily consumption of water per person averages about 30 to 40 gallons. It is clearly not possible to obtain such amounts from individual wells, and when a sufficient number of people live in a community, the provision of a common water supply becomes a necessity. It is all very well for the farmer, say, on an isolated tract of land to drill a well, and obtain pure water. He can see that his cesspool or privy is situated well away from his water supply, so that there is no danger of contamination. As a community increases in size however, land becomes more valuable, and cesspools become mingled together in such proximity that danger of infection with one of the many water borne diseases is always present.

Improvement in water supplies needs no justification. There is ample evidence of the relationship between specific contamination and intestinal infection. It may not be out of place, however, to point out the danger that our past triumphs may engender a smug complacency that will periodically be shaken by the recurrence of disease. We are constantly being treated to the unpleasant spectacle of a public using with apparent impunity, water that does not conform to accepted standards. There is danger that some of us may conclude that the standards are too strict, and not justified by current experience.

To do so would be to display a fundamental lack of insight into the basis of these standards. Based on extensive experience showing that water with a certain degree of pollution cannot be drunk without risk of contracting typhoid fever, they pre-suppose a numerical relationship between the number of typhoid and colon bacilli in the sewage of a community. That this ratio is not the same for all communities or for long periods of time in the same community is well known to the epidemiologist. The community that has had much typhoid fever in the past 20-30 years has a higher ratio of typhoid to colon bacilli than has the community with a low typhoid record. It is not surprising therefore that the latter may use with impunity, a water with a colon index, or degree of contamination, which would be positively dangerous for the former. This does not mean that the standard is wrong, but rather that the community is flirting with danger of future trouble if it it disregards the standard and continues drinking unsafe water. The possible appearance of dysentery infection is also a threat that cannot be ignored, especially as so many men returned from overseas have been found to be dysentery carriers.

Then too, if we attach the least degree of aesthetic significance to the drinking of water containing the living excreta of another's man's bowel, the standard is also good.

The provision of an adequate water supply must of necessity be preceded or accompanied by the installation of a sewage disposal system, since small private cesspools are in almost all cases incapable of coping with the increased amount of sewage waste resulting from the use of a public water works. On all counts, for the prevention of disease, convenience economy, and aesthetically, the construction of town water supplies and sewage disposal system should be supported by everyone.

Red Cross Opens Annual Drive

Opening date for the Red Cross campaign is March 3, and the drive will continue for three weeks or more. The Canadian appeal is for 5 million dollars.

Over one million is needed to provide free blood transfusion service throughout Canada. There is capital outlay required for transport vehicles, equipment and so on.

About $1,390,835 is needed for outpost hospitals. Operating costs cover 54 outpost hospitals and nursing stations and one Red Cross railroad car for health services.

The sum of $1,550,183 is asked as an aid to veterans for maintenance of 8 Red Cross lodges at various D.V.A. hospitals; training services, supplies, entertainment for veterans in hospitals, relief work for veterans etc.

Other peacetime services include crippled children's hospitals and promotion of Jr. Red Cross; First aid instruction equipment; Nutrition programs; emergency relief work in sparsely settled areas.

Apparently Canadian Red Cross funds raised during the war are not available for peace time uses in Canada. According to the War Charities Act, the 6 million remaining from war revenue must be used for purposes connected with war.

Overall total outlay during the war was 121 million. At the end of 1945 there were 16 million on hand and in 1946 there was 10 million expended. All money in this fund must be devoted to war relief, and peace-time operations are kept entirely separate.

Sewage Disposal ?

Yes, it will take away the physical filth of the city, but what is to be done with the filth in the lives of the people of this city? David, the psalmist, said of men that "They are all gone aside; they are together become filthy; there is none that doeth good." And so it is, that there is filth in the lives of every man, and that filth needs to be taken away. Some object and say "We are not filthy; we have not sin.—Oh No?—God says "There is a generation that are pure in their own eyes, and yet are not washed from their filthiness." The majority of this city still lives in its own filth because it has not been cleansed, and many of these are unconcerned about their predicament. The scriptures say that "As a dog that turneth on his vomit, so is a fool that repeateth his folly. Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit? There is more hope for a fool than for him." There is only one way according to the divine instructions in which a man can be cleansed from this filth, and that way is through the blood of Jesus Christ. "His blood cleanses us from all sin," says the Book. Why keep wallowing in the muck of the filth of sin, when God can dispose of that sewage

Schooling of Hutterites Is Bar to Assimilation

Refusal to Send Children to Centralized Schools Main Obstacle in Assimilation. A Kindly, Honest Self-supporting People Say Supporters.

At the sitting of the special committee inquiring into Hutterite Land Settlement, which opened at Lethbridge, Feb. 11, arguments were presented on both sides. J. H. Walker of Raymond, former legislative member, proposed that the law be rescinded, because it was passed as a wartime measure. He said: "The war is over now and in my opinion the law should be rescinded."

L. A. Pharis, representing a number of A.F.U. units, presented the argument that when concentrated in a small area, the Hutterites present a real menace to the Canadian way of life. He showed a map which gave location of Hutterite colonies from Blood Reserve to Warner. "The pioneers among us ask what kind of generation is to inherit our land," he said. "Will it be the children of isolationist Hutterites speaking German dialect, or children brought up to take their place in community and national life?"

J. Harper Prowse, K.C. spoke on behalf of some 20 organizations in the province. He said: "The Veterans Land Act will be in force for 10 years more. It is only logical to extend the Hutterite Act for ten years in order to fulfil the purpose for which it was originally intended."

R. M. Glover, secretary of the Lethbridge division led in presentation of the question from the standpoint of education. He claimed that "he desire for separate schools, and their reluctance to attend rural centralized schools "made it impossible to Canadianize them while they are dominated by elders. The majority never get beyond grade 6, because they have so much work on the Colony. They are little more than serfs. These Canadian-born children are denied the education we honestly believe to be the best for Canadians. They have no chance to decide for themselves or take up normal and useful lives of full citizenship."

Cardston Irrigation and Development company suggested that a large block of land suitable for farming and ranching be set out, perhaps in northern Alberta to eliminate concentration of Hutterites in Southern Alberta. The Cardston brief offered three suggestions: (1) restriction to present holdings; (2) a block of unoccupied land 40 miles square allowing 5 sections to the colony, which would provide for 200 colonies, and be reserved solely for Hutterite colony life; (3) Insistence by the Dept. of Education that Hutterite pupils in established colonies be sent to nearby centralized schools as other Alberta students.

The Cardston brief said there was no hostility to Hutterite brethren but a realization that they do constitute a problem. If a minority group persistently refuses citizenship and the duties entailed, it is not entitled to full measure of Alberta's beneficence.

The insistence of Hutterite representations was that Hutterites were not settled on the most desirable land or on a dry land or on the fringe of settled regions.

Appearing personally before the committee, Lewis Peterson stated that he had had dealings with Hutterites for 16 years and it had been a pleasure to do business with them because of their honesty and fairness and readiness to help in time of need.

Educational problems through insistence on their own private schools were the main point of another brief from Lethbridge school division. There is great difficulty getting gratified teachers for these schools, and it is a hit and miss business with greater domination by the German religious teacher than by the regular teacher. These special classes are held before and after school, are religious and conducted in German. Until education is standardized and away from domination of elders it is difficult to carry out progressive reading. Outside of the German Bible and the few books in the library, current reading is not encouraged, nor have children the advantage of music, good pictures or association with others. The majority do not get education beyond Grade VI and are often 15 years of age before they reach this. Since 1919, said the brief, only two pupils from Hutterite colonies have completed high school, and one of these left the colony and is instructing in a University in Utah.

In Calgary

In the hearing which was continued in Calgary on Feb. 13, representations on behalf of six Hutterite colonies were made by Stanley Vallance of Calgary who claimed that the Land Sale Prohibition Act was unjust, discriminatory and undemocratic, establishing a dangerous precedent. He said no Hutterite ever became a public charge or was convicted of criminal offence or been in default of tax payments. What money they spent is spent in this country. It is a violation of their beliefs to take an oath, so they have not taken the oath of citizenship. He denied that Hutterite children received secret instruction, and said all spoke excellent English. Mr. Vallance's petition testifying to the high standard of Hutterite conduct accompanied Mr. Vallance's brief.

F. J. Ewing, secretary of Rockyford M.D. said that Hutterites in his municipality already operate 40,000 acres and the M.D. had been advised that they plan to buy another 15,442 acres as soon as the law allows. He said such settlement had proved detrimental. They purchase the bulk of their goods on wholesale purchase license curtailing trade of local business. "It is evident," he said, "that if allowed to go on they will amass tremendous tracts, and an individual farmer cannot compete against communal living. Three schools in the district had been forced to close down because of Hutterite settlement, and they have been permitted to establish their own separate schools." The petition was signed by 365 residents of the district.

Regina schools and non-essential businesses were closed last week as dwindling coal supplies threatened the city and main line disruption, held up movement of relief cars. South Saskatchewan was completely blocked off bringing serious shortages. Cattle were dying in the south.

A Message to
CITY AND TOWN EXECUTIVES

Larger cities and towns are discovering that parking is developing into a serious problem. In many places, parking on main streets and highways obstructs traffic, discourages shopping, and increases the hazard to both motorists and pedestrians.

Our study of this problem indicates that the solution lies in providing OFF-STREET PARKING accommodation — convenient for citizens and attractive to visitors.

We respectfully suggest that municipal councils and other public bodies give consideration to solving this problem in the interests of their communities. The A.M.A. will be glad to furnish all information it has available on this subject.

Easy Money

EASY MONEY

It's warble time again—and time for action. Action last year brought to 30,000 Alberta farmers a gain of $5.00 per head on 800,000 cattle. To 60,000 others, inaction meant loss. The season is short, the prize attractive, and now is the time for every cattle owner to ensure his share of the profits.

The warble or heel fly is Alberta's most expensive cattle pest, and the easiest to control. At this time of year simple treatment is all that is needed. Once the larva has hatched from the egg and entered the host, nothing can stop its 8-month migration through the animal's system. Not until it arrives under the skin of the back and bores its breathing hole can we attack it. There is nothing we can do to stop the inflammation, irritation, discomfort and unthrift which attend the grub's painful course.
These effects of last summer's infestation have by now cost the owner approximately $5.00 per head in reduced production, damaged hide, and feed wastage.

Thirty thousand Alberta stockmen avoided all this. It cost them about 5 cents per head—a small expenditure in return for such a handsome dividend. These men highly recommend warble fly control, not only as good business, but as a humane act towards their cattle. Treatment is cheap, easy and completely effective — and IT'S WARBLE TIME NOW!

U. S. sugar allotment has been increased to 90 lbs. per person.
Canada may get a boost from the present 74 lbs. to 82 or 84 lbs.

BEWARE

5c NOW means $5 LATER!

NOW is the time to protect your cattle! Warble-Flies reduce milk production, meat quality, and hide and leather quality. Treatment is easy and effective. It costs about 5c per head and saves $5.00 per head. To be effective, treatment must be given during March, April and May. Make sure your cattle are protected.
It pays later on—in cash!
